CHARITY.

In the hour of darkest sorrow—
In the hour of deepest woe—
Was not for the coming morn,
To the end and sorrowing gloom—
Made it the darkest place—
To administer relief—
To administer relief—
To administer relief—

Go and seek the orphan sighing—
Seek the widow in her tears,
And, on mercy's pious wings,
Go dispel their darkest fears.
Seek the stranger, sad and weary,
Does not on the other side,
Through the task he said and dreary,
Healing not the scars of pride.

Go, with manners unassuming,
In a meek and quiet way—
O'er the father's hearth presiding,
Though thy brother sadly stray;
'Tis a Saviour's kind compassion—
Thy ill's righteousness alone,
All unnumbered salvation,
That around thy path hath shone.

When thy heart is warmly glowing
With the sweet love of prayer,
By thy words of kindness flowing,
Not as with a miser's care,
Duty or would be thy watchword—
Pity only the latter say—
Alone toward the fallen cherish
Sympathy and love sincere.

Miscellaneous.

Do the Right Thing.

Whenever you are in doubt which of two things to do, let your decision be for that which is right. Do not waver, do not parley; but square up to the mark, and do the right thing. Boy! when you divide that apple with your sister, be careful not to keep the largest half for yourself. Young man! don't sneak out of the basement door because you wish to escape your father's eyes. Maiden! let not the most trifling deceit pass current in those little acts which make the sum of your life.

No matter who you are, what your lot, or where you live, you cannot afford to do that which is wrong. The only way to obtain happiness and pleasure yourself is to do the right thing. You may not always hit the mark; but you should, nevertheless, always AIM AT IT, and with every trial your skill will increase. Whether you are to be praised or blamed for it by others; whether it will seemingly make you richer or poorer, or whether no other person than yourself knows of your action, still, always, and in all cases, do the right thing. Your first lessons in this will grow easier, until finally doing the right thing will become a habit, and to do a wrong, will seem an absolute impossibility.

Eighteen things which render young people very impolite:

1. Loud laughter.
2. Reading when others are talking.
3. Cutting finger-nails in company.
4. Leaving meeting before it is closed.
5. Whispering in meeting.
6. Gazing at strangers.
7. Leaving a stranger without a seat.
8. A want of reverence for superiors.
9. Reading aloud in company without being asked.

10. Receiving a present without some manifestation of gratitude.
11. Making yourself the topic of conversation.
12. Laughing at the mistakes of others.
13. Joking others in company.
14. Correcting older persons than yourself, especially parents.
15. To commence talking before others are through.

16. Answering questions when put to others.
17. Commencing to eat as soon as you get to the table.
18. In not listening to what one is saying in company—unless you desire to show contempt for the speaker. A well bred person will not make an observation whilst another of the company is addressing him, self to it.

Cowper says, that "the tear that is wiped by address may be followed, perhaps, by a smile." If it is a woman's tear, the "perhaps" is unnecessary. You can always dry it with a dress.

Hope is like a bad clock, forever striking the hour of happiness, whether it comes or not.

Benefits—He who receives a good turn, should never forget it; he who does one should never remember it.

Old friends are best. King James used to call for his old shoes—they were easiest to his feet.

Loquacious mouths are like badly managed banks—they make large issues on no solid capital.

A man who avoids matrimony on account of the cares of wedded life, may be compared to one who would amputate his legs to save his toes from corns.

Neither contentment nor disappointment arise from the outward condition, but from the inward disposition.

A Fine Image of Virtue.—Certainly virtue is like precious odors, most fragrant where they are inhaled or crushed; for prosperity doth best discover vice, but adversity doth best discover virtue.

If a young lady yawns a half dozen times in succession, young man you may get her hat.

The Debating Club.

About two years ago, in the quiet village of B—, existed a club—no way related to the one clubbed by Hercules, but a peaceful debating club—at whose weekly meetings the lawyers, doctors, and ministers, esquires, and many smaller Clerics of the village, were accustomed to astonish their auditory with eloquent speeches, impromptu, of course, although the question was always selected a fortnight in advance.

"Squire K—, who, like others of his fraternity, was as well known for his rotundity as for windy speeches, gave particular attention to the ministers, being always on the look-out for a chance to 'score' those priests," as he called them. Elder G—, a Baptist minister, had lately moved into the village, and in due time made his first speech in the club upon the question in hand. Before he had fairly taken his seat, "Squire K—, proposing to take the 'starch' out of the unsuspecting 'priest,' rose up, eager to reply. He managed somehow to lug in his old tirade against 'priestcraft,' and also against 'election,' a doctrine particularly odious to his notions of popular sovereignty. Having, as he thought, pretty nearly annihilated it, to clinch his argument, he added, 'I remember Mr. Chairman, when a boy, that my father, a good old Scotch deacon, used to bug me thoroughly twice a day—once for not learning the Scotch catechism, and once for not believing in election. Sometimes I used to escape on the catechism, but on the election I never missed the regular daily floggings, until I grew up, and then the 'priest' tried every conceivable method to force and scare me into it; but I never believed it, and do not believe it yet. Now I would like to have my new friend, the 'priest,' explain, if he can, why these delectable appliances never drove my fearful and foolish belief out of me.'

There was a murmur of applause as he sat down, and all eyes were turned with a little curiosity upon Elder G—, who rose and very deliberately replied:

"Mr. Chairman, while I sincerely regret the galling misfortune of my friend the Justice, I can offer no explanation but that recorded in the Scriptures—'Though thou shouldst buy a foot in a mortar among wheat with a pebble, yet will not his foolishness depart from him.'

The house rang with laughter; and "Squire K—, as ever since avoided all allusion either to the 'priest' or 'election.'—Kaickerbocker.

Amusing Incident in Court.

At Durham assizes a very deaf old lady, who had brought an action for damages against a neighbor, was being examined, when the Judge suggested a compromise, and instructed counsel to ask her what she would take to settle matters. "What will you take?" asked the gentleman in the bob-tailed wig of the old lady. The old lady merely shook her head at the counsel, informing the jury in confidence, that "she was very hard of hearing."

"His lordship wants to know what you will take?" asked the counsel again, this time bawling as loud as ever he could in the old lady's ear. "I thank his lordship kindly," the ancient dame answered stoutly, "and if it's no inconvenience to him, I'll take a little warm ale." (Roars of laughter.)—English Paper.

An exchange says there is nothing like nature as developed in femininity—for so sooner does a female juvenile begin to walk and notice things, than it takes after its mother, and wants a baby. It is almost incredible how much of matter and feeling is wasted on rag babies and squint-eyed Dutch dolls.

A Dutchman in one of the middle counties of Pennsylvania, wanted a minister to preach at his child's funeral, and wasn't unreasonably particular as to who came. "Chon," said he, "go and tell the circus preacher to come, and if he can't come, den get the locust preacher, and if the locust preacher can't come, why den get the extortioner" (extorber.)

On Going to Bed.

Here's a body—there's a bed!
There's a pillow—here's a head!
There's a curtain—here's a light!
There's a puff—and so good night!

What is the difference between an attempted homicide and a bog-butlery?—One is an assault with intent to kill, and the other is a kill with intent to salt.

The most remarkable case of indecision heard of, was that of a man who sat up all night because he could not decide which to take off first, his coat or his boots.

The Seat of Life.—Mr. Brown, Secu-rd, in a recent lecture before the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, London, stated that he found a spot in the brain, not larger than the head of a pin, which, if merely touched by a foreign body, produced death as instantaneously as if the individual had been struck by lightning.

A History of the Devil.—There is a preacher in Chicago, (Ill.), nightly holding forth to large audiences, and giving, as he says, "a history of the devil." The Democrat says that all who hear him are entirely convinced of his thorough acquaintance with the subject.

Tit for Tat.

Dobbs was up and doing April Fool Day. A singular phenomenon was to be seen in the vicinity of his place of business. Dobbs went home from his store the last evening in March, and while taking his tea, remarked to his wife that his colored porter had been blessed with an increase in his family.

"Why," said Mrs. D., "that makes nine."

"Exactly," said he; "but the singularity about this new comer is, that one-half of its face is black."

"Dear me," exclaimed Mrs. D., that is singular indeed. How strange!—What can be the cause of such disfigurement?"

"Can't say," replied Dobbs, "but it is a curiousity worth seeing, to say the least of it."

"So I should think," returned his better half. "I will go down in the morning, and take such delicacies as the woman needs, and see the child at the same time."

Dobbs knew she would, so he went out to smoke a cigar, and the subject was dropped for the evening. Next morning, after he went to his store, the kind-hearted woman made up a basket of nice things, and taking the servant girl, went down to cheer up the mother and see the singular child.

When Dobbs went home to dinner, his wife looked surprised. Before he had time to seat himself, she said:

"Have you seen cousin John? He was here this morning to pay you the money you lent him, and as he could not wait for you, and must leave town again to-day, I told him you would be at the store at half-past two."

"How fortunate," said he; "I need just that amount to take up a note to-morrow. Just two, now," said Dobbs, looking at his watch, I will go down at once, for fear of missing him."

"Can't you have dinner first?" said his affectionate wife; "you will be in time."

"No," said he, "I want that money, and would not like to miss him, so I will go at once."

"By the by," said the lady, "how came you to tell me such a story about one side of that child's face being white?"

"No, no," said he, as he put on his hat, "you are mistaken. I said one side was black. You did not ask about the other side; that was black too. First of April, my dear, first of April, you know."

Dobbs departed in haste, and did not return home again until tea time, and then he looked disappointed.

"What is the matter, my dear?" said Mrs. D.

"Why I missed cousin John, and I needed the thousand dollars to take up a note to-morrow. And every one is so short, I cannot raise it."

"Oh, is that all?" returned she, "then it's all right. Cousin John paid me the money, and said you could send him a receipt by mail."

"But," asked Dobbs, "why couldn't you tell me so at dinner time, and not say he would be at the store to pay me half past two, and so send me off without my dinner, besides causing me so much anxiety for nothing?"

"I'm sorry you have had so much anxiety and trouble," returned his wife; "but you are mistaken in supposing I told you he would be at the store at that time. I said I told him you would be there, at half past two, and knowing you were in want of that money, I knew you would not fail."

"First of April, my dear, first of April, you know!"

Dobbs caved in; he acknowledged the corn, and Mr. and Mrs. Dobbs enjoyed a pleasant supper.

Royal Tomfoolery.

Can it be wondered at that royalty is rendered ridiculous in the eyes of Americans, when the absurdities of some of its customs appear in the English newspapers? Here is a specimen paragraph from the London Telegraph. Commenting upon the appointment of the Prince of Wales (aged 17) to the colonelcy of a regiment, a position that brave men reach only after years of arduous service and daring valor, that paper remarks:

The infant Archduchess of Austria, by a sort of Pragmatic sanction unknown out of Germany, is a Colonel of Horse; the baby of Louis Napoleon holds a military command; the Queen of Greece is a brigadier; and before long it is more than probable that the Princess Frederick William of Prussia will be enrolled as captain of a Cuirassier Guard.

An Extraordinary Horse Story.—The Bonham (Texas) Independent tells of a horse which escaped from his owner in May last, and was found seven weeks after, a mile and a half from the house. He had twenty feet of rope tied to his neck when he got away, and this had become fastened to a bush, and kept the horse all that time. The horse had only twelve feet of the rope to play upon. He had bitten off two elm saplings four inches in diameter, and eaten the stumps to the very ground, and also the trunks and limbs as far as the teeth would reach. No rain had fallen during the period to wet the ground, and in the last four weeks it had not even sprinkled. The horse was an "American" horse, of good size, and was fat when he escaped—when found he was a perfect skeleton.

Great caution was observed in giving him water and food after he was found, and he rapidly recovered his flesh.

Only the indolent are unhappy.

Employment for Women.

Some of our city exchanges earnestly advocate the necessity of more remunerative employment for the great mass of women who have to earn a subsistence by their labor—and everywhere public attention seems to be slowly but surely awakening to the importance of this subject. The women themselves are pushing upon, by degrees, the door of "trade," which has heretofore been closed against them, and when they are once behind the counter to sell goods, they will soon begin to set up stores for themselves. It has even been predicted that thirty years hence they will occupy the retail dry goods stores exclusively.

By close attention to business, and by less expensive habits, they will more surely accumulate wealth than men; and there will be vasty few failures than at present.

They will be employed by the telegraph offices, when the line has gone out into all the earth, and the depths of the sea thrill with iron nerves; and in other delicate manipulations women will be preferred to the rougher sex. They will fill the drug shops, post offices, banks, corporation clerkships, and a hundred other occupations, in which they may support their families, assist their husbands and fathers, and help to raise the dependent of their own sex from degradation

As to what may be made by hotel keeping, it is said a German named Schneider, who used to keep a lager beer druck-hole at 311, Broadway, N. Y., now owns an entire village near Catskill. On his property thus acquired, is a large grist mill, of five run of stone, which he manages himself, a saw mill, a spoke factory, eight dwellings and a church.

we, and poor. Being in the circulation, it pervades the whole body, and may burst out in disease on any part of it. No organ is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not destroy. The scrofulous taint is variously caused by menueal disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, filthy and filthy habits, the depressing vices, and, above all, by the venereal infection. Whatever be its origin, it is hereditary in its nature, descending from parents to children, and is transmitted to the third and fourth generation. It is indeed to be the rod of Him who says, I will visit the iniquities of the fathers upon

Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of corrupt or ulcerous matter, which, in the lungs, liver, and internal organs, is termed tubercles, in the glands, swellings, and on the surface, eruptions or sores. This foul corruption, which genders in the blood, depresses the energies of life, so that scrofulous constitutions not only suffer from scrofulous com-are so composed that disease within the range of their action is either cured or evaded. Their laxative properties search, and cleanse, and invigorate every portion of the human organism, correcting its diseased action, and restoring its healthy equilibrium. A single course of these pills restores the invalid who is bowed down by pain or physical debility to automatism to find hedral or energy restored by a remedy at once simple and saving.

Not only do they cure the every day complaints of every body, but also many formidable and dangerous diseases. The agent below named is placed on the French grants by the American Almanac containing certificates of their cures and directions for their use in the following complaints: Cerebral paresis, Hemiparesis, Headache arising from derangement of the stomach, Stomachic dyspepsia, Stomachic obstruction of the bowels, Flatulency, Loss of appetite, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions.

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and all the affections of the Throat and Lungs.

It is the best remedy for the relief of Consumption, and is the only one that cures the disease in advanced stages of disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness, and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons highly known, who have been restored from almost every desperate disease by the use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's remedy. While one class is superior to every other medicine of its kind is so apparent to every observation, and where its virtues are known, public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs, which are incident to our climate.

While many of the inferior remedies thrust upon community have failed and been discarded, its famed friends by every trial, conferred benefit on the afflicted they can never forget, and duced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION
PHILADELPHIA
A Benevolent Institution established by a liberal Endowment for the Relief of the Sick and Distressed, afflicted with Venereal and Lymphatic Diseases

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in the midst of the total destruction of human life caused by Syphilis, and the desolation perpetrated upon the unfortunate victims of each disease, by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon,

CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their Dr- to open a Dispensary for the treatment and this class of diseases, in all their forms first to give Medical Advice Gratis to all who ply by letter, with a description of their condition, (age, occupation, habits of life, and in cases of extreme poverty, to the NISI MEDICINAS FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Association commands the highest Medical skill, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The Directors of the Association, in their Annual Report upon the treatment of Discusses for the year ending January, 1905, express the highest satisfaction the success which has attended the of the Consulting Surgeon in the care of mitorrhoea, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Syphilis, the vice of Ism or Self Abuse &c., and in order a course of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past year, assured that their laborers in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and are resolved to do for themselves.

An admirable Report on Spermatogenesis, or Seminal Weakness, the vice of Onanism, Masturbation, or Self abuse, and other vices of the sexual organs, by the Cons. Surgeon, will be sent by mail (in a sealed envelope) FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of two Stamps for postage. Other Reports on the nature and treatment of diseases, diet, &c. are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution and ment to the afflicted. Some of the new drugs and methods of treatment discussed during the last year, are of great value.
